

Cutie Patuties to host Earth Day Celebration

April 22, 2016 – Leominster, MA

Earth Day-inspired arts and crafts, games, and face painting are just some of the fun activities planned for the third annual Earth Day Celebration at Cutie Patuties in Leominster.

This free event will feature many fun activities all focused on taking care of our Earth. Kids will have the opportunity to make adorable “Bottle Back Turtles” using recycled materials, participate in recycling races, paint Earth Day pictures on store windows, and learn ways to help protect nature and the environment.

In addition to the fun and games, representatives from the Massachusetts Audubon Society will be on site talking about their work to protect the environment. Information will be available on ways you can live more sustainably and help protect the nature of Massachusetts for people and wildlife. MassAudubon will also be providing a hands-on nature craft for kids.

The third annual Earth Day Celebration will take place from 2-4 p.m. Saturday, April 23 in front of the Cutie Patuties Consignment store in the Johnny Appleseed Plaza at 1021 Central St. (Route 12) in Leominster. The event is free for kids, and all families are invited.
